Ornithology with a Black Birder

February 2nd @ 6:30pm

Alex Troutman is a Wildlife Biologist, Black Birder, and currently obtaining his Masters in Biology from Georgia Southern University. His research focuses on the relationship between birds and insects in tidal wetlands. His talk will be about studying birds and waterfowl in general and being a black birder/natural enthusiast. As a Black Birder he is passionate about increasing diversity in the STEM field. From Blacks in Marine Science, to Black Birder's Week, to leading nature hikes Alex is out to show there are wildlife biologists who look like you.
